Introduction

Gratitude

Gratitude is a consciously drawn energy from a higher power and our connection to the Universe. Seeing the glass as half full instead of half empty is a testament to our own enlightenment. The wisdom of gratitude contains the solution to the mysteries hidden in our problems. It is the primary emotion that pulls us through all hardships and elevates all existence. Feeling grateful is our handshake with divine forces, affirming that something outside of ourselves is guiding our life. Being grateful is the defining characteristic of grace within the human spectrum. Gratitude has within it the principles of fairness and faith. These elevated thought forms confirm our commitment to universal consciousness.

Remember: Gratitude is an attitude of high altitude.

An attitude of gratitude can make the difference between a life of fulfillment, or a life of emptiness. There is so much in this world we cannot control and that fact alone keeps us downtrodden and small. Therefore, it is empowering to concentrate on what we can control and we all have the ability to control our thoughts. Our thought forms create our actions and our actions create our life. That being the case, the first step to a grateful life is to find the tools that will guide our thinking into a positive and powerful way.

The wisdom of gratitude contains the solutions to the teachings hidden in our problems. It is the primary emotion that pulls us through all hardships and challenges. Feeling grateful is the defining characteristic of grace within our human experience because it holds within it the principles of fairness and faith.

This manual is designed to transform our negative thought forms into positive ones, thereby creating a life filled with contentment, no matter external circumstances.

Exercise 1

The Vehicle to Victory

1. Think about what is good in your life, instead of what is bad. Make a list of what is good in your life. Then give thanks.

2. Think about what you do have, instead of what you do not have. Make a list of what you have in your life. Then give thanks.

3. Do you read the newspaper and if so, do you read the violent or negative news? Are you willing to change that potentially harmful habit? If not, why?

4. Are your relationships based on a foundation of something negative? Are you willing to change or leave that relationship? If not, why?

Beginning Positive Transformation

1. Make a list of positive programs and watch them.

2. Make a list of positive video games and play them.

3. Make a list of positive news articles and read them.

4. Make a list of positive people that you would like to get to know better or already know and thank them.

5. Make a list of positive books and study them.

Exercise 5

The Highway to Happiness

It is a sad fact that we cannot escape problems while living in this world. It certainly is not heaven or utopia. However, we can make our own little heaven and utopia. Happiness is not rooted in the absence of problems, it is rooted in the ability to deal with them. All painful emotions have within them an ingredient of strength and power. As example, most non-profit foundations are started as a result of someone getting angry enough to do something about it. Grief is the ocean that tosses us about, throwing us up on the beach...three feet taller. Sadness is birthed from our giftedness to be sensitive. And remorse is the most powerful emotion that can create positive changes within ourselves.

1. Make a list of where you feel or felt pain and how it has or is helping you.

2. Make a list of where you feel or felt grief and how it has or is helping you.

3. Make a list of where you feel or felt remorse and how it has or is helping you.

4. Make a list of where you feel or felt sadness and how it has or is helping you.

5. Make a list of where you feel or felt anger and how it has or is helping you.

Exercise 6

The Concourse to Completion
